IAN WRIGHT MAKES A SPLASH AT ART BOOT CAMP

You know and recognise him as the razor-sharp, quick-talking, comedic Ian Wright from the long-running series, Globe Trekker. You have followed him on his travels to Nepal, Vanuatu, Cambodia and more. But did you know that this adrenalin-seeking Globe Trekker is also an accomplished artist and theatre performer?

Well, on 17 April 2008, some 40 lucky fans of this truly global personality as well as members of the media got a rare opportunity to see this other brilliant side of the man himself, as he talked - up close and personal - about his passion for creativity and children, and how he has allowed creativity to continually flow into his life through his work and pleasures. Of course, the entire delivery was executed in familiar, uncensored, infectious and utterly hilarious Ian Wright fashion, culminating in a fruitful Q&A session, followed by pictures, pictures and more pictures!!!

Some works by the man himself

Ian has had an exhibition of his paintings at Chats Palace in London. He also writes and devises plays in schools, runs drama and art workshops at The Children's House in north London on weekends, and works with children with behavioural difficulties in special schools.

"Art Boot Camp's concept is FABULOUS!!! I mean, what can I say? It's simply wonderful what this place is doing for children. Children need an outlet to express themselves and this is the perfect place for it."
